

Stella: When I had figured out what job I wanted to apply to, the next step was making a great CV. A CV will be the first thing that an employer sees, and it can be easily over complicated, I reached out to some friends, looked at some examples, and followed some tips on writing CV so I could make a really good application. I then made sure that I had some tools to keep well in case I felt rejected or felt like an imposter or felt overwhelmed in the process, so that if I did get rejected, I could try again.